REVELATIONS OF ALLEGED REVOLT PLOT DISCOVERED

Was to Coincide With Coal Strike Now in Progress in England—Big Preparations Being Made.

London, April 6.—Revelations of an alleged plot for revolt in the island which was originally planned to coincide with the opening of the British coal strike opened up this critical day of the kingdom's tie-up. Scotland Yard it was announced had gathered evidence showing that the Sinn Feiners expected the coal strike to drag along until about April 15 for which the date the revolution on a grand scale was being prepared. Meanwhile violences are increasing in the Scottish coal fields, some becoming veritable battlefields.

EXPECTED SETTLEMENT OF COAL STRIKE POSSIBLE

A CLOSE SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN MORGAN DISTRICT.

Will B. Gex and Frank Shamberger Elected to Board by 3 and 5 Votes Respectively

A hotly contested and close school election was held in the Morgan school district, near Graham, yesterday and Will B. Gex was re-elected as a member of the school board, and Frank Shamberger was elected to fill out a vacancy. Opposing Gex and Shamberger were Clarence Yahrmark and Earl Haist. The vote was: Gex 36; Shamberger 37; Yahrmark 33; and Haist 32.

The trouble in that district seems to be over some money the school board borrowed to improve the school building. A tax levy to provide money for this purpose was voted but the board instead of waiting for the money to be paid in, borrowed the money and when the improvement work was done is exceeded what was expected.

FULL ASSESSMENT WILL MEAN A CUT IN SCHOOL LEVY.

The school levy which was voted on and carried at the election yesterday will be decreased to offset the increased assessment by the state board of equalization under full valuation. No more money will be collected than last year except that which is necessary to take care of the normal increase in schools.

The board can decrease its levy on its own motion, although any increase over the constitutional limitation required assent of taxpayers.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Rain to-night and Thursday, much colder Thursday and in the west and north portions to-night.

LITERARY SOCIETY TO GIVE PLAY

BARRIE'S "QUALITY STREET" WILL BE PRODUCED BY STUDENTS

BENEFIT WAR ORPHANS

Miss Blanche Dow to Direct Production in College Auditorium April 28.

The Philomathean Literary society of the State Teachers College will present James Matthew Barrie's play, "Quality Street" in the College auditorium Thursday night, April 28. The play will be produced under the direction of Miss Blanche Dow, instructor in Dramatics and French. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of war orphans.

The play, "Quality Street" has been made famous by Maude Adams' interpretation. The writer, James Mathew Barrie, is one of the most popular of all present day playwrights. The play has been obtained through The Froman Theatre of New York on payment of a royalty of fifty dollars. Maryville play-enthusiasts are looking forward to this production.

The story centers about the five old maids of Quality Street and the romance of Miss Phoebe Throssel, who to the pleasurable consternation of the other spinsters has acquired a "follower." The most casual attentions of this "follower" are interpreted by the romantic ladies as indicative of profound attachment and great is the disappointment when he departs for war without even a declaration. The attempt of Miss Susan and Miss Phoebe at keeping school—the return of Valentine Brown—Miss Phoebe's disguise and subsequent rejuvenation, all furnish situations which are excruciatingly funny.

The cast of characters has been chosen and is as follows:

Miss Phoebe Throssel ..... Faye Townsend
Miss Susan ..... Esther Foley
Miss May Willoughby ..... Bernice Rutledge
Miss Fannie Willoughby ..... Helen Baker
Miss Henrietta Turnbull ..... Anna May Gillis
Miss Charlotte Parratt ..... Edith Shoemaker
Patty ..... Maude Fleming
Isabella ..... Jennie Blackfoot
Arthur Tomson ..... James Draper
Ensign Blades ..... Ora McPherron
Valentine Brown ..... Charles Wells

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NODAWAY COUNTY

KILL TIMBER WOLF NEAR KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, April 6.—A great gray timber wolf, who came down out of the rolling western plains to prey upon sheep in Jackson county, has been slain on the edge of Kansas City. The wolf, which roamed through farm yards and poultry pens over a space of forty square miles for three weeks, was shot to death by Ernest Carey, a coon hunter.

The wolf, according to William Rob, whose farm adjoins the eastern city limits, had even invaded the eastern edge of the city in its search for food. The animal had killed several sheep on Rob's farm when the latter appealed to Carey.

Carey set loose a pack of eight coon hounds on the wolf's trail. The hounds chased the wolf out of a timber hiding place and ran him to earth a mile from a street car line. Carey, who followed the hounds, easily shot the wolf.

He received $10 in scalp rewards, the first paid here for a wolf in five years.

THE JOY OF THROWING OLD THINGS AWAY.

I love those old New England houses that have been allowed to mellow undisturbed through several cultured generations, and have thus been given atmosphere and personality and the air of tranquil ease. Their mahogany secretaries, their thousand-legged tables, and their sleepy-hollow chairs have a kind of general fitness, a way of being taken for granted that comes only through years of placid association. Families who have clung to one house long enough to grow white lilacs and build book shelves to fit their books, who have inherited the acceptance of their neighbors and so need never push nor crowd nor offer explanations, leave their unmistakable impress on their furniture. Only steadfast years and family unity can make even ugly chairs and tables seem to belong. I regard such houses with the attentive admiration we bestow upon the unattainable. I am not at all sure that I covet them, because I would not pay the price of freedom and adventure they entail; but I look wistfully upon their polished loveliness.

My ain folk come of peripatetic stock. I learned when very young to bear my part in the periodic family arguments as to whether we moved to Kansas City in ninety-six or ninety-seven, and whether our house in Council Bluffs faced east or west, and I can even remember joining valiantly in a dispute between my father and mother as to whether I was born in Toledo, Ohio, or Decatur, Illinois.

Naturally, such rolling stones gathered neither white-lilac bushes nor atmosphere, nor did our habits breed reverence in the hearts of the younger members of the family for their elders' choice of household furniture and decoration. Instead of tending old mahogany and patiently darning lovely handmade bedspreads, I learned to thrill and pant and tremble with the ever-new delight of throwing things away. Every time we moved, we got rid of something. Interested always in the new and darkly suspicious of the old, I came to love those times of change and upheaval and of casting aside.—From The Point of View in the April Scribner.

HOME GARDEN SAVINGS ARE $100 A YEAR.

New York, April 6. — The average American family can grow one-eighth of its food and save at least $100 a year by planting a home garden, according to O. S. Morgan, professor of agriculture at Columbia university, who has just completed a survey of agricultural conditions which led him to urge the resumption of war garden work.

"Successful gardening depends particularly upon perseverance and versatility in knowledge," the professor said.

The demand for help in home gardening, particularly strong this year, has led the Columbia department of extension teaching to arrange to present eight bi-weekly lectures, from March 1 to March 29, in vegetable and fruit raising well in advance of the planting season, by Hugh Findlay, lecturer in horticulture at Columbia. Stress will be laid on crops and methods with which success in the same season as planting is most probable.

"Within the metropolitan district are many people interested in the farm outlook who wish to try farming on a small scale and this course is planned for them.

"Hard times are threatening the farmer now. He is not buying an extra truck, a new silo, a 'bargain' $10,000 sire to head his herd these difficult times. He is in the large company of city and factory people who are suffering affliction in the pocketbook region. The city folk, however, are not like the farmer, in position to cut production and yet live comfortably. Hence many war gardens will be resuscitated."

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(Taken from the Nodaway Democrat of Wednesday, April 5.)

Fever is very prevalent in this vicinity just now, in fact three-fourths of our population are suffering more or less from its effects. We mean "Spring fever" of course.

The Rock Port Sentonel says that the road between that place and Maryville is in good condition, owing to the enterprise of private citizens along the route.

The Chillicothe Constitution says: "Track-laying on the Chillicothe and Omaha railroad is progressing favorably. Up to last evening the track was laid about eight miles out from this city."

J. S. Barwick was appointed in the St. Joseph District, M. E. Church, (north) at the Conference held at Savannah week before last.

Our new County Court takes hold of business in good style, and will make a good Court. They were in session three days last week, and spent much of their time making crooked places straight, ect.

Among the attorneys at our Circuit Court from abroad, we noticed Col. Strong and Allen H. Vories from St. Joseph; Col. Heren, David Rea, Mr. Higgins, Col. Giddings and Judge Kelly from Savannah; and Thomas Parrish and Mr. Van Buskirk from Oregon.

Now is a good time to beautify and adorn our homes and improve the general appearance of our young and growing city, by planting shade and ornamental trees. Nothing gives a town a more pleasant appearance than stately shade trees along the streets, that ward off the scorching rays of the burning summer sun.

U.S. TO UNVAIL 7 STATUES IN CAPITAL TO FAMOUS PERSONS

All Located On Sites Donated By Government—Proposed Congress Inspects Such Gifts

Washington, April 6.—Keeping in step with the "clean-up" movement now on in Government circles, the library Committees of Congress and the Fine Arts Commission are preparing an overhauling of art works in the national capital.

During the present year it is expected that there will be unveiled or dedicated the Lincoln Memorial Building, the Women's Titanic Memorial, the Francis Asbury Memorial, and the statotes of Meade, Buchanan, Hamilton and Francis Scott Key.

All of these are to be located on sites donated by the Government in Washington City. Large gatherings are expected for most of these ceremonies, especially for the dedication of the Francis Asbury Memorial, the site for which was authorized by Congress in 1919.

It is now proposed by Congress that there shall be a closer scrutiny over works of art to be placed in Washington before permission is given. This has come about through criticism of some of the statues and memorials that have been placed. Notable among these art specimens that failed to meet the endorsement of art critics was the DuPont statue which was removed, and the site occupied by an Admiral DuPont memorial fountain of artistic design.

It is probable that a blanket resolution will be presented to Congress repealing legislation granting permission for the erection of various statues and memorials not placed or nearing completion. Among those affected by such legislation would be the large memorial to the Nuns of the Battlefield, a Civil War art piece to be presented by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, permission to erect which in Washington was granted by Congress in 1918.

The National Museum will rearrange and set permanently during the Summer many pieces of art now in its possession. Superintendent Elliot Woods, of the Capitol, is preparing plans for new locations for statues placed by the several States in the Capitol Building.

Experienced Mothers know the wisdom of assisting nature before Baby's coming

IT is natural to think of the expectant mother's influence upon the unborn babe. Her food, her habits, her hygiene, and even the condition of her mind, all have a part in determining the well-being or ill-being of her infant before birth.

No woman awaiting the joys of coming motherhood should allow the days to pass without giving nature a helping hand—because the conditions of pending motherhood, existing as they do, over a protracted period of months, create almost a new state of being for a woman.

Just as she prepares herself for it, so will most favorable conditions prevail when her child is born.

Brussels, April 6—Dr. Noff, a professor at the University of Liege, announces that he has discovered an absolute cure for seasickness by the use of belladonna and atropine. PROTEST IN ENGLAND OVER EGRET PLUMES

London, April 6—"Every selfrespecting woman," declared the Bishop of Durham, speaking at a meeting at Sunderland to protest against the holding up of the Plumage Bill, "ought to be heartily ashamed of appearing in public with her person garnished—like a savage Indian with the scalps of his victims— with great plumes and birds of paradise.

"I can hardly imagine a grosser paradox than that which wil be presented in church this Easter of Christian women kneeling at the altar rail to receive the blesing with their heads carying such trophies of callous cruelty."

Of Interest To Women

A prominent physician says that by far the largest number of women's ailments are not surgical ones, that is they are not caused by serious displacements, or growths. Symptoms similar in character are often brought about by much simpler conditions. We therefore urge every woman who suffers from backake, headaches, bearing down pains, side ache, irregularities, nervous despondency, or weakness to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It acts as a natural restorative and often prevents more serious troubles. ADV.

CONGRESSMEN FAVOR FILIPINO INDEPENDENCE

Congressman Edward J. King of Illinois.

Washington.—"The appointed hour is here: let the Philippines be free." This was the keynote of a speech by Congressman Edward J. King of Illinois, (Republican) in which he reviewed the American occupation of the islands from the first day to the present time. He declared that the United States was honor bound to grant independence without further delay.

Congressman King is one of an increasing number of Republicans in the House who are urging quick action on Philippine independence. Mr. King is the author of a bill which provides that within one year the Philippine government, under presidential proclamation, may assemble a convention and frame a constitution.

After the constitution is ratified by the Filipino people the President may recognize the Philippine Islands as "a separate and self-governing nation." The transfer of authority is to be completed within one year. Provision is made for safeguarding American investments in the Philippines and for the providing of coaling stations and submarine bases in the islands by the United States.

Word from the Philippines is that the people expect early independence and will be sorely disappointed if they do not get it.

"No nation has the right," said Congressman King "to hold another people in peonage, even though it may be argued by the professoriate that the condition is simply one of 'tutelage.'

"A little more observance of the golden rule in national and international affairs would soon dispel that desire for exploitation, the fiercest foe of freedom in the world today.

"When we went to the Philippines we declared before the whole world that we were not actuated by any selfish desire of conquest or territorial aggrandizement, but solely by humanitarian impulses."

Congressman King called attention to the fact that Filipinos are now raising funds to erect a monument to Admiral Dewey, which he said was indirectly a tribute to the American people as well as to Dewey. He recalled the cable that Dewey had sent to President McKinley, which was as follows:

"In my opinion these people (Filipinos) are superior in intelligence and more capable of self government than the natives of Cuba, and I am familiar with both."

Congressman King then recited the preamble to the Jones law, passed August 29, 1916, and declared it was a definite pledge of independence. The preamble stated "it is as it has always been the purpose of the people of the United States to withdraw their sovereignty over the Philippine Islands and to recognize their independence as soon as a stable government can be established therein."

Congressman King stated there was no question but that the Filipinos had established the specified stable government and, therefore, it is the solemn duty of the United States to grant the promised independence.

ASKS INDEPENDENCE FOR PHILIPPINES

Francis Burton Harrison

Manila. — Francis Burton Harrison, former governor general of the Philippine Islands, offered to tender his resignation eighteen months ago upon condition that the Secretary of War recommend to President Wilson that a Filipino be appointed his successor. He made the offer while in Washington in 1919.

Discussing Philippine independence, the governor general said:

"I can see in the future a very beautiful vision. When the flag of the Philippine republic shall be hoisted, when the Stars and Stripes will come floating down to the strains of 'The Star Spangled Banner'—that flag, Old Glory, so rich in happy and honorable achievements, will be made doubly dear because it will mean that the United States will have kept its word to the people of the Philippine Islands."

School of Journalism in Philippines

PARCEL POST CHICKS SURVIVE LONG TRIP

Chatfield, April 5.—After traveling seven days and six hours to Leonard, N. Y., and rturn to Chatfield, by mail, it was found that only two out of 100, day-old chicks shipped by a local hatchery, had died. The hatchery made the shipment in response to an order, but later received word by wire that the man who ordered the chicks had left for Florida. The postmaster at Leonard then sent the shipment back via parcel post to Chatfield.

It is an old axiom of the day-old chick business that young chickens, when hatched need no food or water for three days, but this shipment doubled that time with a 2 per cent death rate.

Patching Up The Lawns

Sow grass seed on the last snow if a belated coating appears, or if not, sprinkle over the bare spots and allow the spring rains to beat it in. This will repair the winter-killed spots which mar so many lawns in early spring and the grass will catch and grow much more lustily than if sown after spring has settled down to balmy weather.

Grass seed has become developed to such a scientific standpoint that mixtures to fit any condition can be secured. Be sure and order the proper mixture for conditions in your lawn. If it is shady, get a shady mixture; if dry and sandy, get a dry soil mixture, and so on. A study of the various lawn mixtures will readily indicate which one is the proper mixture for your property and it makes quite a difference. For lawns that are used constantly and need a tougher and more durable sod there are special Mixtures.

A dressing of fine manure or some commercial fertilizer is of great benefit to lawns in the early spring and by all means roll them level and firm. This is a neglected feature of many lawns and one of the most necessary if it is to be the level, velvety surface everybody desires.

Why Love is Blind

Anne Shannon Monroe says in April Good Housekeeping:

"A young woman in a rage with her fiance' for some apparently inexcusable oversight, exclaimed, "I never can forgive him—never!" Her garndmother, sitting near, looked up from her knitting. 'I felt the same way one day nearly fifty years ago,' she said quietly. "Today I can not recall what it was I could not forgive, but the emptiness of life that resulted is still in my mind. Don't get hung up on a snag in the stream, my dear. Snags alone are not so dangerous—it's the debris tthat clings to them that makes the trouble. Pull yourself loose and go on.'

"In our judgements we must first get rid of the eternal self: we must learn to look at the fault wholly in its relation to the person to whom it belongs, not in its relation to ourselves. None of us is created prefect and few—if any—attain perfection. The most we can attain is a perfect understanding of this fact, and a self-control that will enable us to pull loose from the snag and go on with the stream of the life which in other respects is in harmony with ours; not stay hung up, emphasizing the snag and giving it more weight than the stream itself. To be able to ignore is often the most saving of graces."

WOMEN WANT MORE LIBERTY IN CHURCH

London, April 2.—Many church dignitaries are alarmed at Women's demands for a larger share in church services.

At a Convocation of York held recently this fear was voiced by the Bishop of Durham, who said they would not be content with a career in holy orders which limited their sphere to the functions of deacons.

Though the Bishop did not say so, he may have had a vision of women aspiring to be Bishops.

By the decision of the Upper House of the Convocation of Canterbury women are only to be allowed to preach and pray in consecrated buildings to a very limited extent.

The Bishop of Bristol made a spirited but vain attack against the limitation to women's liberty. It was not a declaration of principle, he said, but a confession of prejudice.

LIBRARY AT REST ROOM— FIRST BOOK RECEIVED TODAY.

"Reminiscences of Pioneer Life," written by Robert R. Latta of Garrison, Mo., is the first book in the library of the women's rest room at the court house. The book was sent to Mrs. Laura Biscoe by the author himself after he read a recent story concerning Mrs. Biscoe's work in the Weekly Kansas City Star. The article in the Kansas City Star pictured Mrs. Biscoe as a mother to the public and told of many humorous and pathetic incidents which occur in her daily work of taking care of the rest room.

Since the library of the rest room has had a start, it is hoped others will contribute a book or two for the same purpose.

URGE DEALERS TO MAKE ONIONS LEAD IN MARKET

Valuable Spring Food—Holdings of Vegetable on March 2500 Cars

"Eat onions" is sound medical advice. Onions are a valuable spring food. Just now the American housewife is paying 2 cents a pound for old onions at the grocery store, yet onions are selling for less than ½c a pound in producing districts, and at seven-tenths of a cent a pound wholesale, say marketing experts of the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture.

To be sure, the price to the consumer is already sufficiently high, but the price to the producer is too low. To help remedy the situation the Bureau of Markets suggests that retailers, the chain stores, and public markets throughout the country buy up some of the present surplus stocks and make onions a leader at a reasonable profit, so that farmers will be encouraged to grow onions another year and consumers to eat onions without suffering any financial setback. The Bureau of Markets, suggests, too, that Produce Exchanges and Boards of Trade also lend their assistance, not only in this case, but whenever there is a great surplus of any food crop.

According to reliable estimates onion holdings on March 25 totalled 2,500 cars. Shipments after April 1 in recent seasons have averaged 200 to 300 cars. The southern crop of new onions is two to four weeks earlier than usual and shipments of new onions are beginning to move. A production of early onions of about 7,000 cars is forecast for Louisiana, California and Texas.

It is evident that unless the usual light movement of onions in April and May is increased there will be waste of unsold stocks of old onions, say Bureau of Markets Officials. If the price to the grower is high enough to warrant shipments under present conditions probably 5,000 cars of the new stock will move. Otherwise, not only will there be a large surplus of old onions but a surplus of new stock as well.

What and Why is a Legume

Modern gardening literature has a great deal to say about fertilizing by legumes and the advisability of planting legumes so that they appear from time to time in every portion of the garden. Just what is a legume?.

A legume, strictly speaking, is a seed pod of certain form. The pea and bean produce them. The pea, the bean, the clovers, and many other plants belong to a family known as the pulse family and one of their characteristics is that they bear their seeds in legumes so the term legume is applied to any member of the wistaria and the white locust tree are legumes, so is the sweet pea and the white clover. They all have butterfly shaped or two-winged flowers.

But the remarkable thing about the legume is that it has always possessed a secret for which scientists have striven for years and which only to some degree was discovered during the war under stress of dire necessity, that of taking nitrogen from the air and making it into nitrates.

Each legume is a miniature nitrate factory, and it does its work secretly and underground. It is the only family of plants possessing this characteristic. Pull up a pea or bean or dig up a clover and look at the roots. You will find them covered with little knots or bumps which the botanists call nodules. These are the nitrate factories. They are caused by a small organism, a bacteria or bacteroid which has the faculty of grabbing the nitrogen and storing it. Where a legume grows some of these nitrogen gathering bacteria are left in the soil. It is now possible to inoculate the soil with them through cultures very cheaply procurable at seed stores.

Plowing under the legumes is now recognized as scientific way of manuring. The dying roots filled with nitrates provide the nitrogen in proper form for the plants besides adding to the texture of the soil.

Think of a Hammer and a Telescope

The ordinary poppet-valve is a hammer. Its parts are in continuous concussion.

The Willys-Knight Sleeve-Valve Motor is a telescope. Its sleeves slide on a surface of oil.

There are many other differences, but we do not wish to be technical. The fundamental difference is that the sleeve-valve motor gets better with the use that wears the poppet-valve out.

It is simpler in its design and in its needs, requires less upkeep, and less fuel.

ARE DIVORCE TENDENCIES INHERITED ONE ASKS

Mother Of Mrs. Stillman Devorced By Stern Husband Who Didn't Approve Stage Career

New York, April 6.—Many mothers leave their daughters an inheritance of beauty or charm. Others bequeath jewels and old lace. Some women relinquish wealth to their daughters, some proud name.

Is it possible for the tendency to divorce to be left as an inheritance from mother to daughter.

The story of the Stillmans is now common property. As prologue to the unhappy drama in the life story of the beautiful and accomplished mother of Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman. She is Cora Brown Potter, divorced by a stern husband who did not approve of her espousal of a stage career.

Now "Fifi," her daughter, is undergoing much the same experience, except that James A. Stillman makes charges of a nature entirely different than those upon which the Potter divorce was secured—in that case abandonment.

Tendencies run through families. Even divorce would appear to be inherited if one were to judge by some noted examples of family groups in which martial happiness seems impossible to achieve.

Disposition Can Be Inherited

While the actual desire to divorce would not, of course, be inherited, nevertheless the disposition of character that would demand freedom from an unpleasant situation could be transmitted from parent to child.

We know that certain diseases which are supposed by many to be "inherited" positively cannot be handed down from parent to offspring.

But a predisposition can be transmitted from a mother to her children.

People may say, for instance, that in such and such a family they have all "inherited" a certain malady, but the fact probably is that from one or the other parent the children have received a tendency to develop such a disease, and perhaps living in such conditions as fostered the disease in the parent, have, themselves acquired it.

It is quite likely that a tendency to social disease, divorce for example, might be present as well as the disposition to develop a bodily ill.

Powerful Force of Example

A proud and independent spirit which would make a mother break away from martial bondage, when irksome, might be transmitted to a daughter. The daughter, in turn, might find life so unpleasant with her husband that her high-strung nature would prompt her to get a divorce or, in the event of her leaving such a husband, might cause him to divorce her.

Added to such a spirited nature there would be one of the greatest forces in the world, the force of example.

The mother's example will always impel a daughter. In a moment of doubt she will be very apt to do as her mother has done in a like quandery.

Daughters of divorcees, deep in marriage difficulties, will be likely to decide upon divorce themselves.

The "Fashionable Frenchs," of New York and Newport, exemplify one case in which a mother who was divorced had two daughters, a divorced aunt, and numerous other matrimonial complications throught various branches of her family.

Mrs. LeRoy French in 1914 divorced Amos Tuck French. Mrs. Julia French Geraghty, one of her daughters, in 1919 divorced Jack Geraghty, her chauffeur husband. Mrs. Polly French Wagstaff, known as the beautiful Pauline LeRoy French, divorced Samuel Wagstaff in June, 1920.

On March 11 last Mrs. Wagstaff was married to Donald Oliver McRae, a clerk employed by the Central Union Trust Company, five years her junior.

But the first of the French family to seek a divorce was the lovely sister of Amos Tuck French, Elsie, who married and later sought freedom from the late Alfred Vanderbilt. In 1919 she gave society a shock when she suddenly married a naval ensign ten years her junior, Paul Fitz-Simon.

One of the great difficulties, so it is said, in the problem of the Huhns living amicably together was the fact that both had been married before. Huhn's children by a first marriage did not like the idea of Ethel Huhn, the child of the second union, inheriting any of the Huhn wealth.

Biley-Huhn Romance Shattered.

Then came little Ethel Huhn's romance. Joseph W. Bailey, Jr., in a training camp met Ethel not long ago when she was a debutante. Bailey was the son of a former Senator from Texas. The affair was called a "perfect story book romance." The two were married, but last fall it was rumored hat the young people had separated and that a divorce action would be begun.

Family heartburnings and money wrangles are said to have separated the parents of pretty Ethel. Is it surprising then that when her own marital problems became troublesome she thought of divorce?

Huhn's daughter by his first marriage also followed in her parent's footsteps when she decided to become divorced from Andrew J. Carty, of Philadelphia, with whom, according to statements made to friends, she became "frightfully bored." A son by that first marriage of Huhns is also separted from his wife, who refuses, however, to divorce him.

In a family that has never known the pangs of the legal rending apart that constitutes divorce it seems a strange and terrible thing. It looms up as a devastating, scandalous affair, something to make every member of the family hang his or her head in shame.

But, once experieneed, this legal process does not seem so terrifying.

When a daughter of a divorced mother is herself suffering from unhappy marital experiences, is it surprising that she seeks the solace that she knows divorce gave her mother?

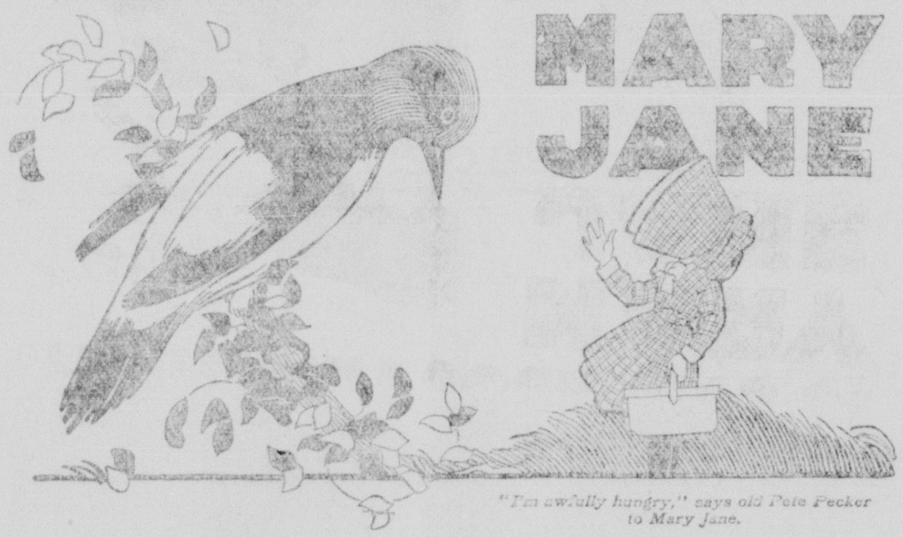
THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE



"I'm awfully hungry," says old Pete Pecker to Mary Jane.

Mary Jane and the Woodpecker

ONE day after school was out, Mary Jane was going home when she heard somebody hammering away up in the tree. Mary hadn't any idea what anybody could be fixing away up in the tree, so she stopped to look, and walked around and around the tree.

Finally she saw old Pete Pecker away up at the top of the tree hammering away and looking for beetles under the bark. Pete Pecker looked down on her and said, "Have you anything good to eat in that lunch basket of yours? I haven't found a beetle for an hour, and I'm aw-ful-ly hungry."

Mary Jane said, "You come right down here and I'll give you a nice big piece of bread, spread with the most de-li-cious syrup you ever tasted in your whole life."

Pete Pecker hopped down, and helped Mary get her basket open. Pete wiped his bill off with his feet, and said he was all ready to eat at any time. So between them, they finished every crumb of the lunch that Mary had left from school. And then they told stories and gossiped until it was time for Mary to go home and help her mother get supper ready.

Mary made up her mind that Mary Jane Syrup is so very good that she ought to tell everybody in the world about it, so as not to be selfish.

And that's why folks everywhere today are using Mary Jane Syrup on their waffles, pancakes and corn bread, and say it's the best syrup anybody ever tasted.
